City of Scottsdale

In 2025, Forbes ranked the city of Scottsdale among the top 15 safest cities in the United States! Forbes also named city of Scottsdale Arizona's top public employer based on workplace culture, professional development, benefits and compensation. With exceptional parks, public amenities and enriching venues, it's no wonder Scottsdale's population of approximately ±247,000 is steadily growing.

City of Scottsdale's planning, development, and zoning laws ensure uniformity and thoughtful integration into Scottsdale's unique natural surroundings, especially vital to 28181 N 56th Street and its surroundings.

The underlying zoning for the Property R1-43, subject to ESL and F-O zoning overlays. To summarize, the zonings not only assure environmental beauty and the natural state of desert surroundings, they protect the Owner-User's property value.

- R1-43: Designed to assure residential development "supports the city's growth while protecting its desert surroundings." In other words, R1-43 regulates density in order to maintain the natural beauty and aesthetic appeal of this Sonoran Desert Region.
- ESL (Environmentally Sensitive Lands): The ESL Overlay protects elements of nature such as prevention of soil erosion and preservation of plant life, both which are conducive to lowering the city heat.
- F-O (Foothills Overlay): F-O zoning ensures that those gorgeous desert views, the beauty of nature, and the rural environment remain safe and unobstructed.

In addition to its unique beauty and development standards, Scottsdale's growth in sports tourism, tournament play, its popular amenities, shopping and dining destinations all make 28181 N 56th Street a rare and attractive offering!
